AI Analysis

1. Overview / Meaning:

This document summarizes the judgment in Ksl And Industries Ltd. v. Mannalal Khandelwal, delivered on February 1, 2005, by the Bombay High Court. The case revolves around Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (NI Act), which deals with the dishonor of cheques. The main issue was whether a complainant needs to appear in court for examination-in-chief even if evidence is submitted via affidavit, and whether cases under Section 138 should be expedited. The case also highlighted the significant backlog of cheque bounce cases in Mumbai's courts.

2. IPC Codes / Acts / Amendments / Sections:

The core of the case lies in Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (NI Act), which criminalizes the dishonor of cheques due to insufficient funds or exceeding agreed limits. The case also discusses Section 145(1) of the NI Act, amended in 2002 (Act No. 55 of 2002), which allows for the submission of evidence via affidavit. The judgment references the Banking, Public Financial Institutions and Negotiable Instruments Law (Amendment) Act, 1988, which inserted sections 138-142 into the NI Act.
